

USING COMPASS FOR WORKFORCE DEVELOPMENT

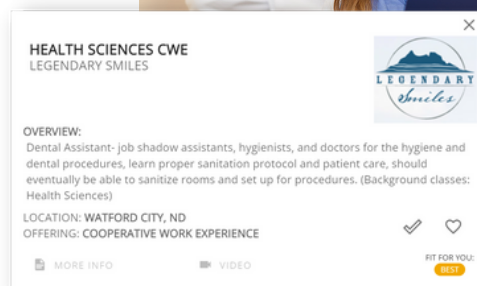

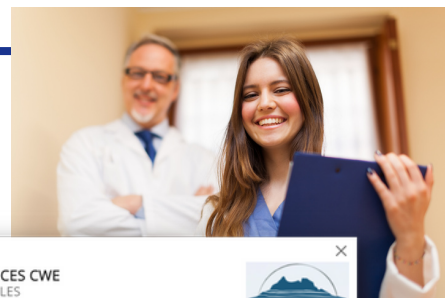

Work-based Learning

Students interact directly with your company and build skills necessary for your roles.

Work-based learning experiences include:

- Mentorships
- Internships
- Apprenticeships
- Cooperative work experiences
- Part-time or summer job
- Service learning
- Practicums
- Career & Technical Student Organizations
- School-based enterprise, projects, or simulations

You can build these opportunities for free on Compass. You may also work with our Golden Path team and/or school professionals to build them.

Career Profiles

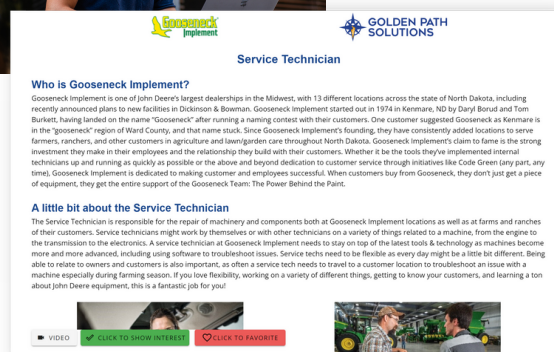

Share information about your company and roles to build interest with students.

Profiles may include:

- An overview of the career & a day in the life
- Skills needed for success
- Classes, activities, hobbies, and personalities that align to the job
- Career paths, salary, & education requirements
- Available sponsorships
- Videos, URLs, other information
- How to contact you

Students are matched to Career Profiles and can reach out for more information. Career Profiles give students the information necessary to get excited about your company, get connected, and start down the path toward employment with you.

Build Career Profiles on Compass yourself, or work with our team (recommended).

Sponsorships

Help a student with post-secondary tuition in exchange for a work agreement.

Sponsorships can be different for each company, but usually it means covering some percentage of tuition and expenses in exchange for a work commitment from the student. Tuition reimbursement might be in the form of a scholarships or loan repayment.

This is a way to guarantee future employment with a great candidate for your company (found through Compass's matching capabilities and/or our other workforce development options). Golden Path helps you facilitate the sponsorship agreement and successful transition through post-secondary education into employment.
